

This August, I'll be taking on the challenge of moving 26.2 miles to help animals! I'll be pushing myself above and beyond for this cause that, as some of you might know, means so much to me.

Animals are abused in countless ways. They're burned, poisoned, and gassed in experiments. They're crowded into filthy factory-farm sheds by the thousands. And they're confined to barren tanks and cages for human entertainment. So I've decided to take on the Marathon for Animals challenge to support PETA's campaigns to end this cruelty.

I'd be so grateful if you could spare a little something to show your support and power me on to complete the challenge. The funds raised will boost PETA's work to create a world that's far kinder to animals – which I'm sure we can all agree is a worthy cause. 😊

Thank you!
